Discover the benefits of Microsoft Business Certification.

Microsoft Business Certification benefits everyone. It helps individuals differentiate themselves in a competitive job market, and enables hiring managers to simplify and shorten the hiring process. It allows teachers to prepare their students with desktop computing skills and expertise. Corporations get the most out of their technology investment by ensuring their staff has the desktop computing skills to tackle the toughest tasks and projects. Most importantly— people who are certified are able to do their jobs better and faster than ever before.

Microsoft Business Certification also gives users the ability to show off their accomplishment. By successfully completing and passing an exam, an individual becomes a member of the Microsoft Certification programme and receives an access code to a private Web site, where they can access a certification logo for use in business communications and on a resume. Users also receive a transcript to demonstrate proof of certification and a certificate suitable for display denoting the successful completion of the exam. These valuable benefits provide the individual with evidence of successfully passing a 2007 Microsoft Office system exam and of achieving the skill level associated with a Microsoft Business Certification.
